EXAMINER'S ACTION

Art Unit 152

15.

Claims 1-4, 11, 12, 15 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

claim 1 use improper Markush language. Claim 1 should read....a member selected from the group.... Claims 2-4 refer to %'s of azelastine but do not indicate the applicability to the physiologically acceptable salts. Claim 12 has the same language as claim 1. The phrase "predetermined amount in claim 15 is indefinite. Claim 18 is improper and indefinite. What are conventional pharmaceutical carrier substances?

Claims 11 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 112, first paragraph, as the disclosure is enabling only for claims limited to those that are in the form of solutions, suspensions, oilments, creams, gels and dosage aerosols as disclosed on page 5 lines 15-16 of the specification. See M.P.E.P. §§ 706.03(n) and 706.03(z).

17.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. § 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --
(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Vogelsang U.S. Patent 3,813,384.

Vogelsang teaches the use of substituted benzyl phthalazone derivatives (column 1 line 16) as antihistamines (column 1 line 35). Azelastine is a species of the generic substituted benzyl phthalazone at column 1 line 60 when  $R_1$  = chloro,  $R_2$  = H  $P=O$  and y is a 7 member ring with an amine group with a methyl group as one of its substituted groups. Azelastin is the compound of Example 38 (column 10 line 30).

Vogelsang discloses the use of azelastine in a pharmaceutical preparation that can be administered in usual embodiments such as tablets, dragers, drops ointments and creams. (Column 6 line 66). Column 6 line 21 disclose the aerosol use of a substituted benzyl phthalazone derivative. Thus claims 1, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11 and 12 are met.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. § 103 which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Subject matter developed by another person, which qualifies as prior art only under subsection (f) or (g) of section 102 of this title, shall not preclude patentability under this section where the subject matter and the claimed invention were, at the time the invention was made, owned by the same person or subject to an obligation of assignment to the same person.

Claims 2, 3, 4 rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Vogelsang teaches Azelastine in a composition for direct administration to the nose of eye (column 1 line 57, column 6 line 65) thus meeting claims 1 and 12. Vogelsang teaches at column 7 line 2 that the recommended dosage of substituted benzy] phthalazone derivative is .4 to 4 mg per day for human patients. Claims 2, 3 and 4 would have been obvious because the proportion or amount of each ingredient is a result effective parameter dependant upon the desired medicinal effect. It would have been obvious to adjust the amount of each ingredient to optimize the effect. In the absence of new and unexpected results which differ in kind and nature, it would have been obvious to vary the amount or proportion of each ingredient. The declarations submitted on February 12, 1990 and June 18, 1990 are unconvincing as to new and unexpected results in that they do not agree with the scope of the claims. All of the claims in the subject application fall within a range of from
